Regine, Irene and Josefa Solzbacher (left to right) are among the first to disembark from the Spanish freighter Navemar, 48 days out of Seville. Bad food, filth, rats, sickness and overcrowding made the voyage a nightmare, according to the refugees, 769 of whom arrived on the vessel built to accommodate 17 passengers. Six persons died during the voyage.

Legionnaires Hear Warner's Plea for Doubling Of Vigilance

(By Associated Press)
MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 15.—National Commander Milo J. Warner of Toledo, O., told delegates to the 23rd annual American Legion national convention today the German invasion of Russia called for no change in the Legion's attitude toward Communism but rather should strengthen its guard against the Soviet philosophy of government.

"We still hate Hitlerism. We still hate Communism and all that it implies," Warner asserted. "Stalin is simply defending his country from attack by Hitler. Whatever attack Stalin can give in resisting Hitler is incidentally of benefit to sincere peoples everywhere. That does not call for any change of attitude towards the Communist party in the United States."

"Rather does the Russian situation compel a redoubling of our vigilance over Communists and other subversive agents in our country because the circumstances are inclined to influence a relaxation of our guard."

"We understand that the President has not authorized aid to Russia under lend-lease law. As your commander I have supported that position. I have further stated that if war supplies are given priority rights and sold to Russia they should be accompanied to their destination by our military observers, and we should have our own military observers on the eastern fighting front."

MOSCOW MISSION
REACHES LONDON

Germans claim Troops Now
Storming Leningrad's
Outer Defenses

(By Associated Press)

LONDON, Sept. 15.—With a wing of the RAF reported already in action against Germany on the eastern front, the entire U. S. mission to Moscow has arrived in Britain for stop-over before continuing on to the Russian capital for consultation with the British and Russians on how to beat Adolf Hitler.

The RAF units now in Russia were only the advance guard of greater forces to go, informed quarters indicated, and the British press carried reports that American-made planes already were in the service of the Red air force.

Junior members of the American mission reached London yesterday with the Russian ambassador to Washington, Constantin Oumansky, after a trans-Atlantic plane flight, and the American embassy announced today that W. Averell Harriman, head of the mission, and the remainder of the delegation had arrived "somewhere in the United Kingdom."

Harriman was expected to reach London tonight.

The delegation has been commissioned, with its British counterpart, to study with the Russians all means of speeding supplies and weapons of war to the Russian front.

Storm Leningrad

(By Associated Press)

German tanks, artillery and troops were reported storming Leningrad's main outer defense works today, with Nazi high-velocity shells smashing into a ring of six-foot concrete bunkers in a climactic assault of the old Czarist capital.

The Germans, acknowledging bitter Soviet resistance, said the bunker system was equal to anything they encountered in the blitzkrieg sweeps through France or Belgium but declared the attack was progressing successfully. They said 4,500,000 Russians were trapped in the Leningrad area.

Nazi military observers asserted that the eastern front, aflame from the Karelian Isthmus to the Black sea, was "ripening for the successes which the high command announced were unfolding."

German troops were reported by the high command to have cracked Leningrad's "defense front" at one point, while on the southern front, the Russians admitted that a Nazi pincer movement was tightening the trap around Kiev.

Conference Group
Approves Tax Bill

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—A joint senate-house conference committee agreed formally today on a record-breaking $553,400,000 tax bill and house members of the group arranged to report the compromise measure to their chamber later in the day.

The bill was $30,500,000 under the total approved by the senate but was $337,400,000 over the measure originally approved by the house.

Chairman Doughton (D-N.C.) of the house ways and means committee said the bill would be called up and would be acted upon then unless a roll call was requested. If a roll call is asked, action will be deferred until Wednesday.

The senate is expected to act immediately after the house and send the history-making measure, designed to help offset heavy defense expenditures, to the White House.

END OF FINNS'
WAR LOOMING"Good Hopes of Peace In Nearest Future", Is Word Today

(By Associated Press)
HELSINKI, Finland, Sept. 15.—The possibility that Finland may be near the end of her war with Soviet Russia was heightened today by the declaration of a government spokesman that there was "good hopes of peace in the nearest future."

Vaino Tanner, party leader, stressed that Finland was an ally of Germany "only by accident" and that this country would continue to fight only as long as her interests demanded.

Finland, he said, never wanted war but he declared that since "barbarous and expansionist Russia" is a neighbor "our long frontier is still insecure and it is probably essential that we should render areas beyond it safe in a military sense. Before that, there is no possibility of concluding peace with anybody."

Tanner failed to give the basis for his hopes of early peace, but there have been previous unofficial predictions that Finland would stop fighting as soon as she regained territories lost to Russia in the 1939-40 winter war, plus enough territory in certain areas to give her a good strategic front.

(The Helsinki government announced some time ago that its armies had regained all the lost territory, thus realizing one of the two aims set forth by Tanner.)

The Columbiana county group will be accompanied by the New Waterford High school band, which they will enter in the parade along with a float depicting a "little red school house" bearing the inscription, "education—the foundation of democracy."

Among those from this county who will attend are: Pres. R. B. Halverstadt, C. G. Potter, local manager; District Supervisor G. V. and Mrs. Weinstein of Lisbon; Clark Halverstadt of Leetonia, R. D. 2; Robert Buzzard of Columbiana, Mrs. J. N. Baker, and Stewart Johnson and family of Homeworth; Harold Bailey, Hanover, secretary of the county association; Herman Noling, Kensington; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Whitacre, East Rochester; Wilmer Satterthwaite of Winona, and Jacob Serafy, Wellsville.

The bands will also participate in the parade during the morning, which will include approximately 80 county farm bureau floats, numerous marching groups representing county activities, and a number of special features.

The speaker will be Murray D. Lincoln, executive secretary of the Ohio Farm Bureau and president of the Cooperative League of the United States. FOES, IS ORDER

Convention

U. S.-ICELAND ROUTE

"That's Our Answer" To Hitler Threat, Declares
Secretary

(By Associated Press)

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 15.—Secretary Knox told the American Legion's convention today that, beginning tomorrow, the United States navy would protect all lease-lend cargoes traversing the sea "between the American continent and the waters adjacent to Iceland."

The navy chief described the Atlantic fleet's orders in unequivocal language—"to capture or destroy" every Axis surface or subsurface raider encountered.

Although Knox avoided the particular word "convoy," his announcement recalled the interpretation given President Roosevelt's shoot-on-sight speech of Thursday night in London, particularly by the British press, which broke out such jubilant headlines as: "U. S. to guard our ships."

First Official Disclosure
The Knox announcement constituted the first official disclosure of how the navy was preparing to carry out the new policy enunciated by Mr. Roosevelt—that henceforth Axis war vessels entering U. S. waters "defensive waters" would do so at their own peril and not wait for them to shoot first.

In a speech prepared for the Legion convention, Knox said: "Beginning tomorrow, the American navy will provide protection as adequate as we can make it for ships of every flag carrying lend-aid supplies between the American continent and the waters adjacent to Iceland."

"These ships are ordered to capture or destroy by every means at their disposal, Axis-controlled submarines or surface raiders encountered in these waters."

"That is our answer to Mr. Hitler's declaration that he will try to sink every ship his vessels encounter on the routes leading from the United States to British ports."

Canton Launches
All-Out Stamp Sale

CANTON, Sept. 15.—Canton today started its "all-out" campaign to show the nation how defense stamps can be sold through retail outlets.

Bakery route drivers, gasoline station attendants, beauty shop operators, bartenders, bankers and the clerks behind the counters in mercantile establishments are equipped with supplies of defense stamps and albums in which customers may save them.

The city was designated several weeks ago by the U. S. treasury department as the site for the nationwide demonstration. The highlight of the week's campaign will come tomorrow night with a parade of about 4,000 marchers and 100 floats.

Participating will be a detachment of 35 men from the 751st tank battalion from Fort Knox, Ky., with six armored cars.

Arlene Davis, Lakewood aviatrix, will broadcast a national radio hookup while flying over the city tomorrow afternoon. She also will drop 600 balloons, each containing a merchant's certificate redeemable for an album containing four 25-cent defense stamps.

NOW WHAT HAPPENS?

The deterioration of relations between the United States and Germany was brought to a tentative climax by President Roosevelt's shooting orders to the Atlantic patrol. If Germany desires a conclusive climax—war—it needs only to continue to carry its naval operations into forbidden territory.

Another shooting affair like that between the U. S. S. Greer and a German submarine, which would have to be interpreted as deliberate defiance of the President's declaration that attacks on United States shipping in the prescribed area are intolerable, would mean war. Presumably, it would be followed in short order by a congressional declaration of war, in recognition of the fact that war already had been precipitated through executive decision.

The alternative is a continuation of the tenuous relations already existing between the United States and Germany. The latter, wanting to avert this country's participation in the battle of the Atlantic as a belligerent, would observe the restrictions outlined by the President. It would avert the climactic incident that would bring on a shooting war.

In that event, the United States would continue to do everything in its power short of shooting to sustain and increase the war effort of Great Britain. It would do this at the expense of Germany's war effort, yet it would not be a belligerent in the battle of the Atlantic. Plainly, this would become an increasingly precarious position for Germany to occupy, though it might be less precarious on the whole than to bring the United States into the war as a belligerent by denying its right to use the North Atlantic as it pleased.

That is the question Adolf Hitler must answer. The question taking shape in America meanwhile is bound to be whether it seemed to be advantageous for Germany to avert a clash with the United States navy in the North Atlantic it would then be the proper course for this government to continue to leave the decision in Hitler's hands. It would give him the advantage of holding the initiative in deciding when and where to undertake his strategy in the war for domination.

JAPAN, ONE YEAR LATER

In mid-September last year Japan, Germany and Italy were preparing to spring a piece of momentous news. Finally, on Sept. 27, they announced that a tripartite pact pledging each of the three countries to aid the other two with all "political, economic and military means" in the event of attack by a power not then engaged in war had been signed in Berlin. The United States was in the squeeze; it was the only power capable of attacking Japan, Germany and Italy; which was not already engaged in war. Premier Konohe explained that if the United States refused to understand the real intentions of Japan, Germany and Italy in concluding an alliance—and persisted in challenging them—then there would be no other course open to Japan but war.

In mid-September last year, however, the British were on their last legs in the far east. They had closed the Burma road and were backing out of China. At home, it looked as though defeat under the hammering of the German air fleet was imminent. Germany looked unbeatable. The only army in Europe capable of giving the reichswehr a workout was Russia's, and Russia was Germany's ally. The United States, confused by the sudden turn of events in Europe, was trying to do everything at once and actually accomplishing little. Aid to Britain was a fine phrase, but when British funds were exhausted it promised to perish even as a phrase. The American position was so weak that, despite threats, Japan still was strong enough to get everything it wanted, except aviation gasoline.

It isn't good will that now promises to make Japan's statesmen think twice before doing anything further about putting the squeeze on the United States. It is the lease-lend act that is strengthening Britain and China and preparations to strengthen American outposts of defense and Russia's savage resistance to Germany's invasion of its territory and Germany's inability to win the battles of Britain and the Atlantic. These things, plus the progress of the American defense program, have made a tremendous difference in Japan's appraisal of the prospects for squeezing since September 1940.

WHAT WOULD YOU DO?

The inalienable right of every American to be a back seat driver is getting its golden opportunity these days. To hear some of the back seaters—which includes everybody below President Roosevelt and, possibly, State Secretary Hull—complain, it would appear that nothing about the course of events suits them.

They are disturbed in particular because the course of events seems to be following the road to war. They blame the occupant of the driver's seat for this, which seems to mean that if they were in the driver's seat they could change the course of events; i. e., they would have peace and security. In view of the fact this probably is what 3,999,999 out of every 10,000,000 Americans want, it would be mighty interesting to hear what the backseat drivers would do if they were driving.

SAVE A LITTLE, SAVE A LOT

The old-fashioned virtue of saving is making a whirlwind comeback under official auspices in the sale of savings stamps for defense. All the familiar advantages are being dusted off and brought to light. For instance, it always was an axiom with savers in the olden days that the way to turn the trick was to save a little at a time. Quickest way to save $100, say, was to start saving dimes. Once the habit was established, the rest came easy. The first $100 was the hardest.

By the same token, the quickest way to get discouraged about saving was to try to do the whole job at once. That was like trying to climb a mountain peak in a hurry; saving had to be done a step at a time, too. Grandmother had her sugar bowl and her grandchildren had their piggy banks—everybody saved a little. In the long run, everybody saved a lot.

Savings stamps for defense enable the would-be saver to reach the same end by an easier route. With his loose change, he buys a stamp from the retail merchant in whose place of business he has completed a transaction. The saver accumulates stamps until he has enough to buy a bond. He hangs on to the bond till it matures, and if in the meantime he has continued to buy more stamps and more bonds he then is entitled to classify himself as an expert saver. It's just like old times—streamlined.

THE STARS SAY:

For Tuesday, September 16

PROMOTION and progress are indicated by the astral vibrations intervening on the affairs of this day. There should be splendid opportunity with the encouragement and hearty support of elders, those in important positions and employers. But bids for this preferment must be based upon personal stability, diligence and strict adherence to the demands of duty and obligation. Large corporations, political or fraternal bodies should be cooperative, especially if handled with finesse rather than force or belligerency.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for a year of advancement, security and solid growth, coming as climax to industry, diligence, dependability and a tested worthiness of character and purpose. Elders, influential persons and worthwhile friends cooperate in this, as well as major corporations, political or fraternal bodies. But some measure of restraint, good nature and finesse must be exercised to attain this fair fortune, not contention, rash or turbulent conduct.

A child born on this day should be endowed with many substantial talents and characteristics fitting it for solid growth and success in life, with elders and high personages showing preferences.

Another thing of which we're firmly convinced is that a permanent structure of international goodwill in the Americas cannot be erected on a foundation of suspicion.

REGARDING ARTHRITIS AND DIET

Food May Help, But It's Only Part of Treatment

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
I am frequently asked to print a diet for arthritis. I refrain from doing so because I think these requests are based on a false conception of arthritis. Too much,

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

nowadays, we are inclined to believe that there is a diet for everything, and if only you can find the right diet your troubles will be over.

There are, on the contrary, limitations to dietary treatment and the real dietitian is the one who knows those limitations. Diet alone will not cure arthritis, and it would be misleading to any sufferers even to suggest that it can.

Probably the best rule that was ever given for diet in arthritis was to point out that some arthritics are undernourished and some are overweight. One group should have a plentiful high calorie diet and the other, a reducing diet. A difference of 350 calories a day, either increase or decrease, often has spectacular results.

But there is a germ of truth in the idea that diet has something to do with arthritis. The American Committee for the Control of Rheumatism defines arthritis as a systemic disease with joint manifestations, and systemic means that the general nutrition is impaired. Dr. Ralph Pemberton, of Philadelphia has long studied these nutritional aspects of the condition and I have his latest paper before me.

Old Diet

The old idea was that the proteins—meat especially—foods were injurious in arthritis. The old van Noorden diet, long so popular in Vienna and at the European spas, used a raw vegetable diet.

The beneficial results on these diets has been attributed to lack of sodium salts—including ordinary table salt. The sodium salts tend to hold water in the body and retention of fluids is certainly present in arthritis.

This hidden "dropsy" or water retention is a fact which constitutes the basis of the modern diet which is just the opposite of the low protein—raw vegetable diet. To chase the fluids out of the body, we should give foods that do not tend to retain water.

The carbohydrates—starches, sugars, vegetable foods and cereals—are most influential in this connection, because for every gram of vegetable food stored there is stored three to four grams of water. One gram of fat stores only one-tenth gram of water and protein leads to little or no storage of water in the body.

New Diet Theory

On this basis the diet of arthritics should contain at least one gram of protein of good biologic quality—animal flesh, milk or eggs—daily for every two pounds of body weight. This amount has been found by trial and error to keep most arthritic patients in equilibrium. The rest of the needed calories for the day should consist of one-third to one-half carbohydrates—cereals, bread, vegetables, fruits, sugar—and fat one-third to one-half.

Along with this, emphasis has been put lately on the vitamins. The digestive tract of the arthritic is often deficient in absorption and extra vitamins are needed.

But again, and finally, we should emphasize that the nutritional and dietary elements are only part of the treatment of the arthritic. Removal of infection, focal or systemic, relief of pain, local treatment to the joint by alternative rest and massage, heat and light are all equally important.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

T. P. L.—I am overweight and for a number of years off and on for several months at a time I have used saccharine in coffee, two or more grains a day. Is this harmful to my health?

Answer—Several years ago I published all the information that has been accumulated about the rumor that saccharine is harmful and at the time I went over a number of researches, all of which indicated that there is no harm resulting from the use of saccharine, even in large doses, and even over a long period of time.

Who says the PIONEERING DAYS are over?

TRAINING
Instructing a student in cable splicing.

Covered wagon days are gone. But the pioneering spirit still lives in the telephone business. Since Alexander Graham Bell invented the telephone, more progress has been made in science, than during all previous human history.

Telephone progress has been due, in large measure, to the painstaking effort and persistent action of older heads in the business—men and women who have served 21 years or more. They are the Telephone Pioneers—an organization of seasoned veterans. Part of their time is devoted to instructing and coaching younger members of the organization in telephone progress.

In troubled times like these, steady hands and mature minds are needed in all business. We in the telephone business pay public tribute to our Telephone Pioneers—whose sure judgment and progressive thinking are pushing ahead in the field of communications, in the true spirit of the pioneer.

PUPPET LOVE by Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr.

Nicky and Bring were still contentedly chatting when Chris quietly took to the road again. He had to see Eunice. She was capable of anything that she didn't call his number in front of Nicky. After all, she was not a bad kid. Her mother had urged her on, but he didn't think she really cared much about him. She liked the drinking, all-night dancing lads—the kind whose families might not have as much money as the Bishops but spent more.

The camp was in comparative gloom when Chris pulled into the main drive, but the gray trailer was gone. A lean had sauntered up to the car.

"Parkin' Cabins?"

"The trailer—the big one," Chris demanded. "Where is it?"

"Oh, that one!" the boy grinned. "They went on. Said they had to do another seventy miles tonight. They only stopped here to fix supper. I'm askin' you, boss, now wasn't that some outfit?"

Chris agreed and headed back to Cotton Boll. Seventy miles down the coast tonight. Tomorrow, he and Nicky were headed inland. They wouldn't meet again, if the Baddington Grants kept to the schedule. In less than two weeks, the elegant trailer would be in or near California's celebrated vineyards.

Chris lit his pipe, relaxed for the first time since his brief respite after dinner and drove in peace. The rain had stopped, and the moon was sailing through a ragged banner of clouds. There was something special about southern moonlight. Perhaps he could persuade Nicky to leave Bring at the hotel and go for a walk....

On the porch of the hotel, Nicky and Bring rocked and chattered. They had compared their separate adventures during the past days, discussed the weather and commented on the moon breaking through the clouds. At last they were silent and Nicky fidgeted. "It was strange, she thought, there was no more to say to Bring, and yet she and Chris ran on for days."

"What I started to say," Bring cleared his throat, and spoke as breathlessly as though he'd run up four flights of stairs. "I've been thinking about you—a great deal lately. Considerably more perhaps than I should—than our acquaintance would warrant...."

Nicky was sorry she hadn't thought of something to say. She extemporized, "That's from being alone, I suppose. Butterflies are not sociable."

"Oh, but they really are!" the amateur naturalist protested. "And quite absorbing as a general rule, but this was different. I wrote my mother about it. You see I always discuss everything with mother."

"Everything?"

"Absolutely! She understands me perfectly. I wrote her about you."

"Did she understand about—me, I mean?"

"The difficult thing to explain was your travelling around the country this way—so informally, as it were."

"As it is," Nicky corrected. "So what?"

"That's just it. You lack a goal. You should have a purpose."

"I wish I did," she admitted honestly. "But that's what I'm trying to find—something I really want, something I really can do."

"Have you ever tried mathematics? Mother says it is the only direct answer to life."

"Maybe I don't want an exact answer—it sounds too lofty to me. Like living in the stratosphere."

"There's your real trouble," he murmured, "you're flippant. And yet I realize you have a social consciousness, and that flippancy may merely be a defense mechanism."

"Speaking of defense," Nicky sprang up. "I never showed you the photographs dad took of the old Roman forts. They're in Nemesis."

"I had really wanted to say...."

Bring persisted.

"We have lots of time," Nicky interrupted, drew a deep breath and began to talk, as they went toward Nemesis. If he stopped her now, he was good!

Chris looked about the deserted porch of the hotel. Where, now, were Nicky and Aloysius? The dining room was closed. A couple of elderly folks dozed to the radio in the lobby, while a foursome solemnly played bridge in the lounge.

On the square, all was silence, except for the clatter of a group of youngsters near the opposite door. The only other lights came from The Coffee Cup, before which the Baddington Grant caravan had halted for the night.

A look into the Cup and he stepped short. Perhaps, as his father had commented frostily, "the country was getting too democratic" or the world absolutely infinitesimal.

Sitting at the counter, his big shoulders comfortably hunched, a newspaper propped against a sugar bowl and a plate of ham and eggs before him, was the lantern-jawed man who had haunted their travels with the persistence of Aloysius Bring. This, however, was the first time Chris had caught up with him.

He went in and settled on the next stool. "Coffee, please," he said quietly. The man looked up instantly, as quickly turned back to his paper. But wasn't there a look of surprise, of possible recognition?

"I beg your pardon," Chris said presently, reaching for the sugar. "Excuse it," murmured the man, lifting his paper.

"Quite all right," Chris smiled. "Haven't we met before?"

"Us?" asked the man. "Don't place you, but it's a big country."

"Perhaps you think so, but it seemed a trifle crowded to me today."

"The roads are free, brother, the roads are free."

"It seemed a drag on coincidence we should meet so frequently."

"Still think we met, eh? Well, Washington Bedloe's my name, Brooklyn, New York, my home town, and I'm travelling for my health."

"Your health?" Chris echoed. The man appeared to be solid muscle from bull neck to toe, with a bit to spare above the neck.

"That's what I said. Now you don't look any too healthy yourself, a city man?"

"New York.... Chris Allen.... manager for Nicky's Marionettes."

"The doll show? Well, now, what do you think of that?" Then almost guilelessly: "Whos the blond chap visiting with the girl over in the trailer tonight?"

"A naturalist," Chris retorted. Why was he answering this man's questions and hadn't he thought to look in Nemesis?

"Naturalist, eh? One of those fellows that goes around undressed?" Bedloe demanded, over a big helping of dunked roll.

"No, this one studies insects!" Chris flung change on the counter. Good night!

He knew Bedloe watched him go. Of course this man was following them—had been for weeks....

The lights were bright in Nemesis when Chris turned the corner of the square. As he approached he could see Nicky and Bring—her dark curls and his slick blondness, close.

"Showing Aloysius the family gallery," Nicky waved to the box of photographs—formal and snaps—that spilled over the bed and floor.

Chris lit his pipe and tried to force an interest in the discarded pictures. A large one on the bottom attracted him—a regulation press photo.

"That," Nicky explained as he took it up, "was Eunice Baddington Grant's debut. I'm that white shoulder in the left corner. My head wasn't included."

Chris scarcely heard her as he glanced frantically over the massed assemblage. He had been to the party sometime during the evening. Was he in the picture?

Swiftly he studied the dim faces. Then his eyes suddenly strained in sharp focus. Not at his picture but at that of a footman, whose face after a powdered wig was almost as ridiculous as a lion's in the sun-burnt. But there was no mistaking the physiognomy of Washington Bedloe. Was he some of Rodney Baddington Grant's work? Was he trailing Nicky?

With a yawn Chris rose and placed the picture with the others. "Could I borrow Nicky for a few minutes, Bring?"

"Al was going anyway. He's tired, too," Nicky said blithely, flinging the pictures into the box. He's seen the main exhibits. Run along and get your rest, Al. Perhaps we can have breakfast together."

Bring beamed, until she added: "We three."

With a reluctant good night, he left to turn back hastily: "I wish you'd think over what I said.... about a purpose, you know."

"What's he talking about?" Chris asked Nicky as they strolled later under the moon toward the Arab.

"He wants me to have a purpose in life."

"Like what?" Chris demanded.

"Oh, mathematics."

"Mathematics or matrimony?" They were ready to pull the bed oars when he asked that.

"Stroke!" Nicky ordered, and the two beds slowly descended. "He didn't mention matrimony," she added, as she sat on the bed.

Chris sat opposite her. She looked tired. "Perhaps we both need a purpose," he said.

"Like what? Entertaining the countryside? Maybe Al is right. I ought to take up mathematics."

"Or Rodney Baddington Grant," he suggested.

"Don't talk about him or any of them. It makes me ill."

"Washington Bedloe said tonight I looked ill," he mentioned the name casually. Nicky frowned.

"Who's that?"

"The bull-faced chap we've run into occasionally. Remember the first time near Roanoke?"

"Oh, him! So that's his name," she sighed, and curling her feet under her, leaned against the wood and canvas side of the Arab. "Maybe you're right, Chris. Maybe I should go back to New York and marry Rodney."

"Don't take me seriously—on that. You can't run out on the show while our luck holds up."

"But it isn't holding, Chris. You see that. Wherever those engagements came from, they've ended. It's all there is. After Tampa, what?"

"Who can tell?" he tried to sound confident. "Perhaps we'll get another break. I was working on that trailer hitch this afternoon and the more I think of it, the better I like it. I might do something with that."

"And then peddle garages?"

"Don't be discouraging."

"I'm sorry Bring and Eunice were too much in one day."

Chris was seated beside her. "What you really want is to be taken care of, isn't it?"

"I guess it is," she admitted ruefully. "Not a big ambition, is it?"

"It's the biggest ambition in the world," he said with sudden heat. "Don't you see, Nicky, if you need caring for, someone else must have ambition to do it?"

"But it's so sort of old fashioned—and lazy, and if that's true, I'm right back where I started. Rodney could do that—ultra de luxe."

"No he couldn't," Chris denied. "Not the way you really want. Money, perhaps, but there's understanding, and cooperation and.... love."

"You find someone to give me all that," she laughed, excitedly, springing up, "and I'll marry him."

"Can I count on that?" Chris yelled after her, but she was running along the deserted square to the stolid bulk of Nemesis.

Nothing was accomplished really, nothing decided, yet somehow everything seemed right again. Plainly Nicky didn't know Bedloe and, if he were trailing her, suspected nothing. Unreasonably happy, Chris went to bed to be gently rocked by the Arab which moved with every breeze like a ship at anchor.

Grate Alleys Refreshment Stand Done In Knotty Pine

Above is pictured the refreshment stand at the remodeled Grate Recreation alleys on S. Ellsworth ave. This stand is located near the entrance of the upstairs alleys, just back of the spectators' seats. The stand has been completely done over, along with the rest of the alleys. Done in knotty pine, it presents an attractive spot. Only soft drinks are sold, of course, but almost anything in this line will be available, together with sandwiches. It represents another of the many items which have gone into putting the Recreation alleys among the finest in this part of the country.

USE OF GOOD OIL WILL AID DEFENSE

Not Only Saves Wear On Motor, But Is Also Economy Move

Defense first! Of course, everyone's agreed on that—as a national policy. But how about your own private affairs? How about the things that are strictly up to you like buying motor oil for your car? Do you think of "defense first" in that case? Let's see. Motor oil must defend your engine against heat and friction. If it fails to do this, the close-fitting parts of your engine soon begin to show signs of excessive wear. Your engine begins to lose its punch. Soon you're paying a big repair bill to put your engine right again. Motor oil cannot defend your engine safely against heat and friction if it contains wax or petroleum jelly. Wax and petroleum jelly are non-lubricating substances that thin out in the heat of driving. So the next time you need oil, remember this, states Mr. H. R. de Malignon, agent for the Sinclair Refining company. Sinclair Opaline motor oil contains no wax or petroleum jelly. These substances are removed from Opaline by an extra refining process which requires chilling the oil down to sub-zero temperatures. You can count on Opaline to give full protection at high temperature—reduce wear on moving parts—form no excessive carbon deposits. You'll find, too, that Opaline lasts so long it saves you money.

Modern Machines Used Throughout by Paris Cleaners

BEST EQUIPMENT IS USED BY FIRM

Latest Machinery Designed To Handle Any Article Of Clothing

Pictured in an adjoining column is a scene from the finishing department at the Paris Cleaners plant on the Benton rd. This is called the finishing department because here it is that the various articles of clothing finish their trip through the different cleaning processes. The finishing department is located on the east side of the Paris building, in the new addition. It is large, airy and designed for its own particular needs. In fact, the floor space of the Paris has been practically doubled as a result of remodeling operations, recently completed. The machines pictured here are made up of work benches, with pressing and various ironing devices on top. The large pressing devices seen at first glance are for trousers, large articles of wearing apparel, etc. But in addition to these, there are numberless smaller devices for ironing out puffed sleeves, and finishing other, more intricate pieces. Nothing has been left undone in the way of equipment installation to make the Paris one of the finest and most modern cleaning plants in this section of the country.

DEFENSE IS FIRST FOR DESOTO PLANT

National Program, Essential Civilian Needs Are Emphasized

"The 'number one' responsibility of our company is that of participating in the nation's huge defense program. And our second responsibility is that of meeting essential civilian transportation needs, to the extent the growing defense program permits." This is the substance of a statement of policy made today by Byron C. Foy, president of the DeSoto division of Chrysler corporation, who declared he looks upon each phase of the two-point program as vital. DeSoto, he announced, is "already rolling" on such a program for the coming year. Build Parts for Bofors "First, as our part of Chrysler corporation's 'number one' job, we are rushing preparations to build important parts for the Bofors anti-aircraft cannon, one of the finest weapons of its type in the world, and also more than a thousand parts for the Martin medium bomber. "And second, we are producing, in quantities governed by national defense requirements, what we believe to be the finest motor car we have ever created. "We look upon each phase of this program as extremely important. The need for guns and more guns, bombers and more bombers, is urgent. And everybody knows that the automobile has far outstripped its early days as a luxury purchase and has become a vital necessity without which we would suffer severe dislocations in the day-to-day life and transportation system of the country. "More than half the total car mileage and three-fourths of all trips made are necessary to earning a livelihood. In their business activities, Americans wear out and replace more than 2,000,000 cars annually. Keep 'Em Busy Foy stressed the importance of keeping men and machines busy at requirements until such men and the normal task of fulfilling civilian machines are needed and can be absorbed in the expanding defense production.

"And that," he said, "is why we undertook to meet our share of the country's civilian needs for transportation with the finest cars we have ever engineered. "Frankly, we don't know just how many of these De Soto cars we will produce in the coming year, for with us the building of materials for the defense of our country will always come first. But we do know that every car we build—will be the best we know how to produce."

Nn Punching Clock With Iron Fireman

There's no "punching the time clock" for families that have installed an automatic coal stoker equipped with Iron Fireman's patented synrocstat. States Wm. Tolerton of the Citizens Ice & Coal Co., Iron Fireman distributors. The unique feature of the synrocstat is that it regulates the time the stoker starts in the morning and goes off at night without any setting. It regulates the fire all year by itself. It doesn't have to be set each evening like an alarm clock or most thermostats.

REDDING, Cal.—Mrs. Harold A. Belknap was accustomed to seeing her husband help himself to small change from her purse occasionally when he was short. So, when, in the early morning light from her bed, she saw a man bending over her purse, she said nothing and fell asleep again. But this time it was a burglar.

FEVERISH BROOKS SEEK VICTORY IN GAME WITH REDS

Win today, with Cards Idle. Would Move Dodgers Into 2-Game Lead

(By Associated Press)
CINCINNATI, Sept. 15.—Feverish for their first pennant since 1920, Brooklyn's Dodgers sought today to win their second straight in a three-game series with Cincinnati and boost their league lead to two games.

With other National leaguers idle, a Dodger victory would get back a half game second-place St. Louis gained by winning two yesterday when the Reds broke a tie in the ninth to take a single game from the Reds 7 to 5.

A Redleg loss would tie the champions with third-place Pittsburgh and mathematically eliminate Cincinnati from this year's race. Big Paul Derringer, after his 10th victory and second over the Dodgers who've whipped him four times, was Manager Bill McKechnie's probable to forestall this unpleasantness, with Elmer Riddle, the loop's leading moundman, a second choice.

Luke Hamlin was Brooklyn's nomination to swell 1941 Dodger victories over the Reds to 14. Yesterday the Dodgers began a roaring crowd of nearly 24,000 twice came from behind to send Bucky Walters to his 14th defeat against 17 triumphs.

Casey Wins Fourth
Hugh Casey got his fourth conquest of the Reds, taking over from Kirby Higbe and retiring the Reds in order in the last two rounds.

The Dodgers in those two frames tied the score on Ducky Medwick's eighth-inning double and a pair of plouts, and went on to win in the ninth on Billy Herman's homer. Lou Riggs' double, Medwick's single and Pee-wee Reese's double added another for good measure.

The St. Louis gang overcame the Giants twice by scores of 1 to 0 and 6 to 5, the second tussle going 10 innings. Carl Hubbell, still a master craftsman, held them to three hits in the opener.

They went into the ninth frame of the second game trailing by two runs, but knocked Cliff Melton from the hill to tie it up and then won out in the 10th on an error by Dick Bartell with the sacks filled.

Reduce Brooks Lead
The double win enabled the Cards to reduce Brooklyn's lead to a game and a half. The margin is certain to be changed one way or the other today, as the Cards take a rest while the Dodgers have another shot at the Reds.

Pittsburgh won its first game with the Phils 2 to 1 and appeared to have the nightcap sewed up until the Phils suddenly blasted loose for five runs in the ninth inning to win it 6 to 3.

The Chicago Cubs split a pair with the Boston Braves. The Braves blasted 15 hits to take the first 6 to 3, but absorbed a 10-3 licking in the second.

Young Sid Hudson turned in the day's feature piece in the American league, yielding only four hits in pitching Washington to a 2-0 shut-out over Detroit.

The Cleveland Indians hopped on Marv Breuer for five runs in the eighth inning to win the second game from the Yanks, 5 to 2, after losing the first 6 to 3 on George Selkirk's homer with two aboard.

The Boston Red Sox virtually clinched second place by taking a pair from Chicago, 9-2 and 5-2. St. Louis shoved the Philadelphia Athletics into the cellar by sweeping a doubleheader 7-2 and 5-1.

Breezy Briefs Of Sport From Brietz To You

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—Monday matinee. Most surprising news of the week-end was that, licking Whirlaway took up at Narragansett, and it's really got the horse players wondering. Isn't it about time for the Dodgers to begin asking if the Giants still are in the league? They didn't help Brooklyn a bit by losing that doubleheader to the Cards yesterday. Betty Hicks Newell, the new women's golf champion, says she'll listen to pro offers because "My husband and I need a stake to start out married life." From tournament winner to bread winner, huh?

Today's Guest Star
Don Pierce, Topeka (Kans.) State Journal. "Only choice grid timber we ever heard of escaping the Cornhusker clutches at Lincoln are Tom Brook, sophomore Notre Dame center, and Bob Robertson, U. S. C. half, both of whom are touted to be two of the top football twinklers of the nation this year. When they roll, the chargin' out in the big double-decker in Lincoln should be as deep as last year's cornhusker line replacements."

Latest sign of the coming chilly season is that a new pro basketball league, to take in eight major cities, is being formed, with New York's original Celtics as the starter.

Cleaning The Cuff
Jimmy Johnston turned down $5,000 for Bob Pastor to fight Melio Bettina in Los Angeles. He wants double or nothing. Even before the Dodgers went out to St. Louis for that crochial series, the home fans had made plans for a victory rally when they come back east.

It's scheduled for next Sunday in Philly. In J. Willard Ridings' annual poll, 98 of 137 southwestern newspapermen picked Texas to win the southwest conference football title.

Carl Snavely, Jr., is a fifth-string blocking back on his dad's Cornell team. Baseball scribers report there's a laugh a second when Casey Stengel and Hans Lobert get together.

Their words make a hit even if their teams don't.

Last Laugh
Jimmy Wilson, the Cubs manager, defines a batting slump as when you look past the pitcher and see 22 outfielders and 10 infielders daring you to hit.

Each made his competitive bow over the weekend with almost identical results—crushing defeat by two of the most improved and powerful elevens in the 10-team circuit.

Neals, former backfield coach at Yale, saw the stream-lined New York Giants smear the first edition of his Philadelphia Eagles, 24 to 0, before 38,747 at Philadelphia Saturday night. Curly Lambeau's Green Bay Packers were no more hospitable to Edwards, rolling over his Detroit Lions, 23 to 6, yesterday afternoon. Edwards was signed by the Lions after a brilliant regime at Western Reserve.

GETTING RESULTS!
Classified ads, are alert salesmen on duty every night. They get results quickly.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—Although no one involved will make a peep about it yet, it was learned today that a group of men headed by John B. Kelly, former world champion oarsman, is interested in buying the Philadelphia Athletics.

The story is that Kelly, a Philadelphia Democratic leader, and Jim Peterson, who pitched for Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics about a decade ago, are the guiding lights in the attempt to purchase the National league's chronic cellar dwellers.

Friends of Peterson and Kelly say the group, which includes three other men, is ready to go as high as $500,000 to include any debt's the club may have, and that a $300,000 fee already has been put before Gerry Nugent, the Phil's president.

However, from Nugent on the one side and Kelly and Peterson on the other, all the way up—or down—to National League President Ford Frick, who figures he "would get wind of it if something was doing," there comes nothing but denials.

Columbus Bulls Begin Defense of Pro Title
MILWAUKEE, Sept. 15.—Displaying touchdown dynamite late in the game, the Columbus Bulls began the defense of their American Professional football league championship Sunday with a 34-7 victory over the Milwaukee Chiefs.

The Bulls scored a touchdown in the first period on a pass play and added 24 points on four touchdowns in six minutes of the fourth period, two of them on passes.

Dodgers Beat Cards In First

Before a crowd of 20,000 in St. Louis, the league-leading Brooklyn Dodgers eke out a 6-4 win over the St. Louis Cards in an 11-inning duel, thus increasing their lead to two full games with two more games of the "crochial" series to be played on the Redbird diamond. Dixie Walker singled in the eleventh with the bags loaded to account for the margin of victory. In this photo, Pee-wee Reese of the Dodgers takes a throw from second to force Johnny Hopp, Cardinal infielder.

Defeat Alliance For Third Time; Thousands See Horse Show And Festival Beauties

Several thousand people yesterday saw the Salem polo team rally after a late start and play brilliant polo to defeat Alliance for the third time in six games, 15-14, after an overtime period. Maintaining a slight edge after the first chucker, Salem almost lost it in the closing minutes of the final frame as Ossmun pounded through three goals in four minutes to tie the score.

It was, however, Ossmun's profane language to Referee Jack Hendricks in the last chucker which gave Salem a free goal and enabled them to keep the score tied.

After barely a minute of the overtime Pidgeon drove through an angle shot from out of the scrimmage dust near the goal post to end the game. The victory was much like an earlier Salem win over Alliance this season when Pidgeon scored in the overtime to give Salem 12-11 victory.

Ossmun's three goals in the final chucker gave him an 8-8 tie with Pidgeon in individual goals scored during the game. The two players were neck and neck throughout the game. Several potential Pidgeon goals were lost when long angle shots bounced off the goal posts. In the second chucker, alone, Pidgeon lost two goals in this manner.

One of the neatest shots of the game came when Tony Sheen broke an 8-8 deadlock in the fourth chucker by scoring an angle shot from heavy scrimmage. Sheen drove an under-the-belly shot through most of the clustering Alliance team for the score.

The crowd also saw the queen of the Salem Apple Festival and her court and witnessed the annual Salem polo club horse show. Sixty people were entered in the various events with prizes going to several Salem and district riders.

The winners are listed below:
Polo stop, turn and barrel time test: J. M. Pidgeon, won; Ray Murphy (Alliance) 2; Roy Murphy (Alliance) 3; Ray Moff, 4.

Ladies riding class: Mrs. Cecil Bennet (Winona), won; Mrs. George Miller (Lisbon), 2; Miss Betsy Rouse, 3.

Men's riding class: Dr. G. A. Rose, won; William Benson, 2; Robert Zeck, 3.

Couples' riding class: Robert Zeck and Kenneth Taylor, won; Mr. and Mrs. Willard Cope (Winona), 2; Cecil Bennet (Winona) and Robert Fletcher, 3.

Trophies and ribbons were awarded the winners by the Salem polo club. Several attractive prizes were also contributed by Salem merchants.

Hungary's Regent Visits Hitler

Radiophoto

Adolf Hitler, regent of Hungary, walks beside Adolf Hitler at a railroad station, described by the Berlin censor as "a moment of triumph." Reports state the Hungarian premier visited Hitler at the latter's field headquarters somewhere on the lower Russo-German front. Hungary is an Axis satellite.

TEN CARS OF OIL ARE LOST IN FIRE

COLUMBUS, Sept. 15.—Ten cars of crude oil went up in billowing clouds of smoke and flame today after derailment of a 61-tank car train transporting vitally needed oil to the Atlantic coast.

Fed by nearly 100,000 gallons of oil, the spectacular fire could be seen for nearly 20 miles. Homes in the village of San Marquette, on the northwest outskirts of Columbus, were threatened for a time. Firemen were powerless against the blaze. Time and again the intense heat forced them to retreat with their hoses.

The Pennsylvania railroad, transporting the tank car train from southwestern oil fields to Philadelphia, estimated damage at thousands of dollars.

Besides the ten tank cars which burned, five others were derailed but the oil was saved. The other 46 cars in the train did not leave the tracks.

DECEMBER'S AUTO OUTPUT TO BE CUT

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—The Office of Production Management announced today that December production of passenger automobiles would be cut 48.4 per cent below the output of last December to conserve essential materials for defense.

Manufacturers will be permitted to produce only 204,848 passenger cars in December, compared with 396,823 in December 1940. It was made known at a meeting of Leon Henderson, director of OPM's civilian supply division, with the automotive defense industry advisory committee.

U. S. WILL PROTECT LEASE-LEND SHIPS

Secretary Knox Reveals Route To Iceland To Be Guarded

Whether "protection as adequate as we can make it" meant that U. S. warships would begin escorting convoys of British and other cargo vessels tomorrow was a matter of conjecture, but the fact that an interim of four days was necessary between President Roosevelt's statement and the beginning of this protection indicated that some special arrangements requiring time to complete had been made.

Knox's announcement came near the end of his address to the Legion gathering, and after he declared that since United States occupation of Iceland on July 7 "Hitler and the Nazis were palpably losing the battle of the Atlantic" and therefore were forced to attempt to break down the bridge of ships carrying supplies to Britain.

"If they did not swiftly take successful measures to break down this bridge," Knox said, "the defeat of England, the prime purpose of the war, would become impossible. If they did make such an all-out effort, they would add the United States navy to their numerous foes. "It was a grim choice, but Nazi action in the past few days had left little room for doubt of what they would do."

Slain In Holdup

COLUMBUS, Sept. 15.—A man who Police Sgt. George Tiller said had escaped from two prisons was shot to death in a grocery holdup here and identified as Fred G. Reed, 25, of Blacklick. Tiller said the man broke from the Mansfield reformatory several months ago, was retaken later at Moundsville, W. Va., and then fled. A companion who escaped from the bullet fired by Grocer Clayton L. Lloyd surrendered, Tiller said.
